

Asas ds Socorro

Wings of Mercy

October update: 2007

This is the first of what we hope to be short monthly updates in between our quarterly prayer letters to keep you in touch and rejoicing with us in all that God continues to do through you and the Asas de Socorro (Wings of Mercy) ministries.

During an extended holiday at the beginning of September, we hold our yearly mission conference. The mission staff of Asas de Socorro (Wings of Mercy) throughout northern Brazil works intensely throughout the year on the field. This is the one chance we have to get away with family and co-workers for a time of fun and fellowship for a few days, and I had the wonderful privilege once again of being part of the team that helped to put it all together. Jessica helped with the children.

The theme of our conference this year was thankfulness (1 Thess. 5:18). Thirteen families and two singles out of nineteen were able to attend (forty-eight of us total). After twelve adventurous hours driving around hundreds of pot holes (more like craters) and driving right across the equator into the northern hemisphere, the five car caravan composed of our mission staff from Manaus arrived in Boa Vista, Roraima, tired but more than ready to relax and let God minister in our lives through praise, worship, fellowship and uplifting messages. God is so good, and we all had the wonderful opportunity to enjoy His creation and each other! We also made a trip out to the land our mission just purchased for the construction of the new hangar and airstrip for the flight program in Boa Vista. We had a special time of prayer and dedication there.

Family News Blurbs ☺...

Joshua has three very tough math classes this semester and is swamped with homework. He has also left his off campus supermarket job and received special training to work at the front desk of a luxurious new hotel near Branson.

Julie just started her first year in Nursing after switching majors and has such an intense schedule she has had to quit her off-campus job for all but a few hours one day a week and may have to drop that. She loves the challenges, but she has also had to start "banking" hours or start putting in more hours for her on-campus job because she was informed that, during her senior year, she will have an internship and will not be able to work at all. College of the Ozarks is a work-study college so all students have to work a certain number of hours per year to help guarantee their tuition-free status. She is also taking psychology classes. She went to a college retreat to photograph it for the yearbook.

Jessica is now applying to the same college and we are looking into other colleges for her, too. She is still undecided about her major and would really appreciate all your prayers about that. God is teaching all three so many wonderful things about His direction, that He really cares about even the smallest details in our lives, and so much more. Thank you so much for upholding them all in prayer and for backing them up in so many wonderful ways!

God Bless.

Love and Hugs,

The Kannenbergs
